

No chocolate? No problem – try these dessert recipes instead

Tired of chocolate? You're crazy, but not alone.

We're calling it – we are die-hard lovers of chocolate. We're the type of bakers that must sample every block, who won't let a chocolate shaving go to waste, and swoon over a gooey, chocolate centre. But sometimes, you just want a chocolate-free dessert.

Don't revoke our dessert master membership just yet, these recipes are sweet and rich all on their own, no cocoa required.

So when you're craving something sweet, why not reach for one of these dessert recipes instead.

Coconut Tea Cake

Take your tastebuds on a tropical holiday even in the depths of winter with this delightful tea cake. With coconut and lime as the main flavours it will become your new favourite weekend treat.

Nectarine Frangipane Tart

Stone fruits like nectarines really don't get as much love as they should, but this tart shows them for the hero we know they are. With crisp pastry, a fluffy frangipane centre and slices of sweet nectarine on top, this tart is for those who don't like their desserts too sweet.

Almond Custard Tart with Mango

Okay, this tart is best suited to warm summer days with a big scoop of ice cream. But no list of chocolate-free desserts would be complete without it. We're counting the days until mango season and this will be the very first thing we make!
